Wheatbelt to host digital health forum

28 February 2017

Health professionals and care providers in the Wheatbelt will have the opportunity to learn about the latest developments in Digital Health.

WA Primary Health Alliance (WAPHA) and the Australian Digital Health Agency are co-hosting the Digital Health and My Health Record Forum to increase awareness of the benefits of utilising Digital Health tools, particularly My Health Record.

WAPHA regional manager Fiona Bush said the forum on Tuesday 7 March is open to all health professionals.

“The forum will provide updates on the latest developments in Digital Health nationally, as well as information on the My Health Record,” Ms Bush said.

“It will also provide an opportunity for health providers to meet with WAPHA regional staff and the Australian Digital Health Agency.”

Ms Bush said the forum was aimed at informing clinicians about Digital Health.

“We know that clinicians have lots of questions about My Health Record, so this is a great opportunity for local providers to find out how these tools can be used and the benefits they bring to their Practice and to the healthcare experience of their patients. “
