New service provides more support for women experiencing endometriosis, pelvic pain and menopause

WA Primary Health Alliance (WAPHA) is proud to announce the establishment of a third Endometriosis and Pelvic Pain Clinic (EPPC) in Western Australia (WA), based at Luma: for Her Health and Wellbeing in Joondalup and available to any Western Australian.

Luma has been funded through to 2028 to provide comprehensive care for women experiencing endometriosis, pelvic pain, perimenopause and menopause. Services will commence in January 2026, with a multidisciplinary team providing holistic care for what can often be complex health conditions.

This funding will also support workforce training, purchasing of equipment and improved referral pathways to strengthen collaboration across the health system.

Following the Australian Government's commitment of $16.4 million over four years to establish targeted EPPCs, WAPHA secured funding for two clinics in 2023 – The Garden Medical in Murdoch and Pioneer Health Albany in country WA.

Building on this, the Department of Health, Disability and Ageing last year announced an expansion of the program to 33 clinics nationwide, enabling services to broaden their scope to include care for perimenopause and menopause alongside endometriosis and pelvic pain.

The addition of Luma as a provider marks a significant step forward in improving health outcomes for women across WA, reinforcing WAPHA's commitment to accessible, high-quality primary health care.

Anyone experiencing symptoms of endometriosis, pelvic pain, perimenopause or menopause can self-refer to any of these services.

Additionally, to ensure continuity of care, information regarding treatment, outcomes and ongoing care plans is shared with each patient's usual GP.

This service is made possible by funding provided to WAPHA under the Australian Government's PHN program.

Quote to be attributed to WA Primary Health Alliance CEO Bernadette Kenny:

“We know conditions like endometriosis and pelvic pain can have a profound impact on women’s lives, often leading to years of diagnostic delay and unnecessary suffering.

“By expanding these clinics and including care for perimenopause and menopause, we are ensuring women across WA have access to timely, coordinated and compassionate care.

“Luma for Her Health will play a critical role in delivering this support to the community in Perth’s northern suburbs and beyond.”

Quote to be attributed to Luma CEO, Bethany Lord:

“We’re excited to offer compassionate, expert care through our new Endometriosis and Pelvic Pain Clinic. Our dedicated team supports women experiencing pelvic pain – including endometriosis, adenomyosis, and PCOS – and those navigating the challenges of perimenopause or menopause. We’re passionate about breaking down barriers, really listening to women, and helping them move through every stage of life with comfort, confidence, and care.”

About Us: WA Primary Health Alliance shapes, strengthens and sustains primary health care through partnerships and strategies that improve people’s access and health outcomes. As the operator of WA’s three Primary Health Networks – part of the Australian Government national PHN program – we help communities and people most at risk of poor health to get better access to care closer to home. We achieve this by supporting general practice to deliver the highest quality patient care, funding local primary health care services based on community needs and connecting local services to simplify the health care system. Along with our strong partnerships, our statewide structure allows us to deliver better health, together for the benefit of the WA community. For more information, visit www.wapha.org.au
